

ELEFThERIA MANTA

was born in Thessaloniki, Greece.

She is Associate Professor of Modern Greek History at the School of History and Archaeology.

She studied History at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, where she received her Master degree after conducting a 1-year research program in Rome with a scholarship of the Rotary Club of Thessaloniki. She received her Ph.D. (2005) on Modern and Contemporary History while she was working (from 1992) as Research Associate of the Institute for Balkan Studies, in Thessaloniki, at first with a scholarship of the Onassis Public Benefit Foundation and later as a permanent employee. On 2008 she was elected Director of that same Institute.

She joined the School of History and Archaeology of the Aristotle University on 2011, initially as Lecturer.

Her academic and research interests include Modern Greek history (from 17th c.), Albanian and Balkan history, Greek-Albanian relations etc. She speaks English, French, Italian, and Albanian.

Her main publications are:

Poverty and Charity in Thessaloniki (1930-1935), Thessaloniki 2016 (in cooperation with D. Kontogeorgis and Ch. Mandatzis). (in Greek)

The Educational System for the Greek Minority in Albania during the Interwar Period, Thessaloniki 2010. (in Greek)

Muslim Albanians in Greece. The Chams of Epirus (1923-2000), Thessaloniki 2000 (originally in Greek, translated in English, 2008, and in Albanian, 2015).

Kosovo and the Albanian Populations in the Balkans, Thessaloniki 2000 (collective work).

The Greek Minority in Albania. A Documentary Record (1921-1993), Thessaloniki, 1994 (in cooperation with B. Kondis).